The KILZ® PIPP Awards are presented for overall project excellence and superior craftsmanship. Alpine Painting and Sandblasting Contractors won an award in the Commercial Restoration: Exterior Category. Details on their project are listed below.

Alpine Painting and Sandblasting Contractors was approached by a former client to work on a truly challenging project – waterproof a 100-year-old building that was falling apart. The client, All Stat Information management, stores paper documents for hundreds of clients, and could not risk any water falling through cracks. Aside from making the client happy, safety was the number-one priority on this project. Falling concrete and debris made movement difficult, and the crew had to stay on their toes at all times. Daily “toolbox talks” helped keep attention sharp and there were no incidents during the project.

After testing, repairing, and prepping all concrete and brick surfaces in the large warehouse, Alpine moved ahead with a detailed plan of action. A rendering of the building was created to outline what sections would receive each color, and an agenda was created to ensure the crew knew the plan. The project was completed on time and on budget, and a very happy client expanded Alpine’s scope to include more finish work on the building.
